Dear Keith,

1988 SLMM

We are writing to thank you - the Saunders family - and all the helpers for a memorable SLMM week-end. We felt really stretched by the race but came home elated with our overall, albeit modest, position of 53rd in the Kirkfell Class.

Doubtlessly you will have had criticism over the severity of the Kirkfell course, particularly as it might be billed as an introduction to a 2-day mountain marathon, and certainly, we only moderately fit but doggedly determined veterans (combined age of 98 years) found it really hard going. However, having plugged steadily away all day in perfect weather to get into camp by 8pm. we were delighted to have survived a real marathon day. We were very tired and heaven only knows what the attrition rate would have been if the weather had been bad. Perhaps there was one ascent/descent too many in the course, the omission of the descent into the valley south of Fairfield would have been warmly welcomed!

So you shortened the second day by a little - a token gesture to the severity of the first day rather than to ensure our survival through the second day, we suspect, but the thought of an easier day was encouraging! In the end we ran all the way down from the dam and into the Finish feeling very pleased with ourselves and the week-end. Very many thanks.

Further observations.

(a) Give prospective competitors a better idea as to the severity of the course - the 'standard' entry needs updating.

(b) The 'instant' results service on both days was much appreciated, including a list of those still adrift.

(c) What an excellent centre the Ullswater Hotel made - from an ideal Friday evening pitch through to the 'bow-tied' staff serving us a welcome lunch.

More please!

Yours sincerely,
Michael Featherby and David Tebbutt.

6th July 1988

Dear Keith,

I recently took part in the Klets Class of the Saunders Mountain Marathon and feel a need to pass comment on the course you set for us.

Overall, I very much enjoyed the event and found the route planning of the obligatory controls provided much food for thought, especially those on and around Helvellyn.

However, I was somewhat disappointed with the 'special' controls you set. I competed in last years event and found then, that the special controls ADDED to the enjoyment of the course but your 'specials' had the reverse effect. Apart from the gully on Red Screes, they detracted from the overall enjoyment.

I fail to see why you went to so much trouble to hide the posts/punches. This resulted in competitors spending inordinately long periods of time in searching (witness the long total times recorded by competitors). You then turned these controls into a game of 'hunt the thimble' which seems at variance with the philosophy behind mountain marathons.

I failed to find two of these controls, (one on Helvellyn and the other on Wolf Crag) giving up the search after 30 minutes in each case as I considered the exercise futile.

One competitor I talked to after the event was informed by another competitor who observed him, that he had passed within three feet of the post on Wolf Crag control without noticing it because the post had been driven so deeply into the ground that only its very top was visible. Surely the post should have been visible from a minimum of 10-20 feet, given the accuracy of orienteering with a 1 in 25000 OS map.

Other competitors reported that they had found controls, (a) by luck - stumbling on them after climbing the crag (alone or in company) - thus turning themselves into 'bingo' controls, or, (b) being led to them by other competitors. This happened to me at the Castle Crag, (Haweswater) control where I had spent 15 minutes locating the control post and, whilst punching my card, revealed the location to two other competitors who had just arrived - they thus immediately gained 15 minutes on me.

Surely the posts should be visible from a reasonable distance and the challenge should be at getting at them (scrambling, climbing, balancing, crawling, swimming even!).

The only control I considered to be in the true spirit of the event was the one in the gully on Red Screes. It was precisely where described, not hidden, and to gain the punch, (especially if approached from below), required some exciting scrambling to overcome the chockstones. Pity the other controls weren't in the same vein.

I hope that next year you may have revised your philosophy on these special controls. I'd also like to suggest that in next years programme you include a fuller explanation of the rules concerning the penalty incurred in not completing all the special controls and the effect on ones overall position in the final ranking.

Yours sincerely,
Mike Hawkins
